

The two-touch outreach sequence

The structure behind the two-touch CRM. Every prospect gets two touches at most, and each one has to earn its place.

The sequence, in order

1	Signal	Start from something they said, not a job title: “redesigning our site”, “website is live”, “our site is so slow”. Log the date. A launch stays on a company’s mind for about 90 days; after that it’s background noise.
2	Person	Check who is actually behind the post. Can this person say yes to the work? Founder, CTO, head of product: yes. Recruiter: no. “No agencies” in the bio: believe it.
3	Audit	Visit the domain. Run a PageSpeed check (about 90 seconds). Screenshot one finding. Pick the finding with the clearest consequence for their business.
4	Touch 1	Four parts: what you looked at, what you saw (one element, one number at most), why it matters to them, and a question you actually want answered. One or two issues, never a list. No pitch, no calendar link. Send within hours, not days.
5	Touch 2, the last	Only with something new: a new finding, a change on their site, or a response to what they said. Never “just following up”. If there is nothing new, don’t send it. Close the thread.
6	Close	A reply: it’s a conversation now, so it leaves the sequence. A “no”: closed for good. Silence after touch 2: closed. There is no third touch.

The rules

- Two touches per person. There is no third.
- A “no” is final. The person is never re-added.
- Auto-replies are logged but never counted as replies.
- Contacted prospects are never deleted: deleting and re-adding someone is a third touch with extra steps.
- Count honestly: your reply rate leaves auto-replies out.

The template, column by column

Column	What goes in it	Values
name	Who you're writing to company	Their company
role	Their role. Check they can say yes to the work.
contact	Email address or LinkedIn URL
signal_type	What kind of signal it was	pain launch rebuild hiring title
company_size	Headcount band	1-10 11-50 51-200 201-1000 1000+
signal_quote	What they actually said
signal_date	When they said it	YYYY-MM-DD
touch1_date	When touch 1 went out	YYYY-MM-DD
touch1_note	The specific thing you pointed out
touch2_date	When touch 2 went out (needs touch 1)	YYYY-MM-DD
touch2_new_information	What was new since touch 1
outcome	Blank while waiting	replied said_no closed_no_reply
outcome_date	When it closed	YYYY-MM-DD
auto_replies	How many auto-replies came in. They are not replies.	a number
added	When you added them	YYYY-MM-DD

Import the CSV into the free CRM at outreach.soniconsultancyservices.com/tools/outreach-crm/, which enforces the same rules. Built by Het Soni, founder of Soni Consultancy Services (soniconsultancyservices.com)